NARBERTH'S 4 WALLS MAKES NAMED ONE OF THE 20 BEST PLACES TO WORK IN PHILADELPHIA HOW COOL IS THAT?

If you're a 4 Walls client you probably know how friendly and people-centered the organization is. You probably receive top-notch customer service and quick turnaround on your questions. But you might not realize why 4 Walls employees are so dang happy. 4 Walls employees are happy because they are in their fuzzy slippers, slurping their coffee with their dog at their feet. The radio is on and their mail carrier knows their first name. It's a good, good life when you work at 4 Walls.

"My son plays his gameboy and I work on my laptop. It's perfect harmony." Says 4 Walls' marketing maven, Jennifer Milani who works out of her Ardmore home.

"I melt in the sunlight so it's quite fortunate for me that it's cool if I work from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m." says Greg Hoffman, 4 Walls' web designer/creative genius, working out of his Long Island home.

Brenna Heaps does all of her extraordinary project management and client relations from her spotless and quiet home in Northern Liberties. "I only have to see my co-workers when I choose to," she says. "No distractions and no bad jokes. It's great."

4 Walls founder and CEO, Ellen Thompson sneaks off to tennis lessons once a week. Actually, she doesn't sneak. She just walks right out her front door. "We've created an environment where people can get excited about what they are doing and have the freedom to be creative and comfortable. It's a win from every angle."

Philadelphia Magazine honored 4 Walls with a spot on its list of The Twenty Best Companies. Named "Best Office." 4 Walls was selected for this honor because 100% of its ten employees work from their own homes thanks to the use of a variety of technology systems that allow them to function as a virtual company. The 4 Walls team is very proud. Everyone celebrated in their own way at their own home.

4 Walls helps renters and property managers connect through its network of 11 regional online apartment guides. 4 Walls also runs 4 Marketshare, which provides web site design and web marketing to small businesses.
